I will go in the front entrance of the library. It looks like this:

This table is at the entrance of the library. Sometimes someone will say hello to me when I come in.

This is where I can return anything I borrowed from the library. Arrows show me which way to walk.

This is how I know someone works at the library.
All the people who work or volunteer at the library wear a badge like this.

There are rules at my library:

- Children under 15 must be with a grown-up at all times.
- No running.
- No throwing.
- No food or drinks.
- Library materials should be handled carefully.

This is the Youth Services Desk. People at this desk can help answer questions and find books and movies!

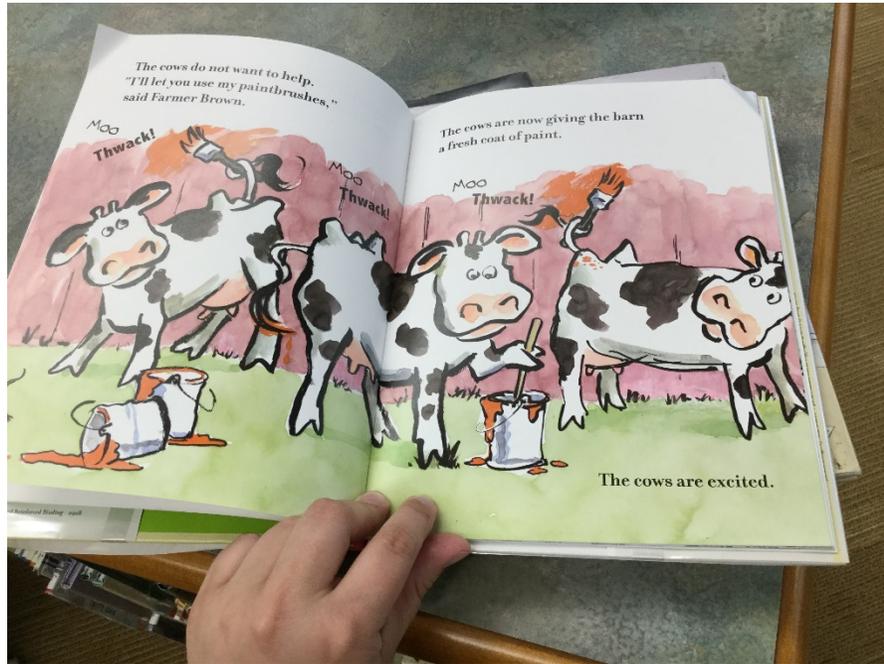

If I want to check out materials, someone in my family needs to have a library card. They look like this:

I can use the displays to help me find new books to read. I can check out items off a display, if I want too.

I must respect library materials.

THIS

NOT THIS

This is where I can use the bathroom at the library.

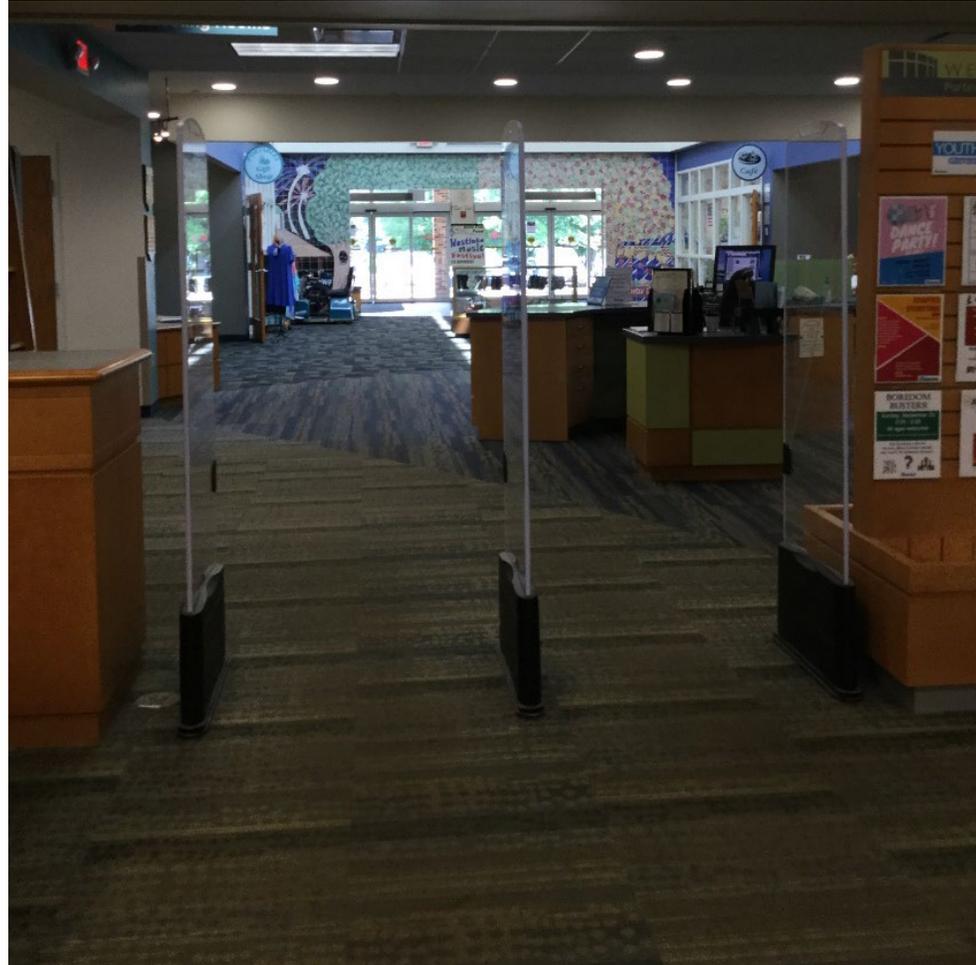

I can use a self-check machine to check-out materials myself. I can follow the signs and arrows.

Signs show me where to walk out of the library.

These are the security gates. Sometimes these gates beep. If that happens, I just have to check with the person at the circulation desk.

It's time to go! I am finished at the library. I will come visit again soon!
